

Is the Glass Ceiling Also a Mirror?™

To create a culture that values what women bring to the table, what comes first – collective change or individual change? Do they have to change first?

Or do each of us have to take the first step?

As long as we believe “they” are the problem and the answer is “out there” – above us, below us, beside us – we will never fully embrace the real source of our power that lies within each of us.

How you see yourself. That’s the leverage no one is talking about. Change your words – change your world. The way you see yourself each day IS the answer you seek.

Meet Kari, Ranee, Gabriella, Darsha, Avalene, Jalila and Nikki.

Quite a crew they are: endearing, fun, outspoken, creative, and courageous. Together, they are the Sisterhood of Seven™.

Their mindsets will be familiar – I expect perfection. I need permission. If I work hard enough, I will be rewarded. Their stories will be life-changing.

The Sisterhood of Seven is a light in the darkness for all women, a manual of truth that transcends age, culture, economic status or leadership position.

Let it prove that, without doubt, you are already enough.

That even in the midst of society’s drumbeat of BE more – DO more – GIVE more, life does not have to be so hard. Let it teach you new ways of thinking that will elevate your life, professionally and personally. Their wisdom will inspire you to rewrite your personal narrative, day-by-day, decision by decision.

When we each do this and truly OWN our piece of the narrative, there will be a collective ROAR so loud that everyone will listen. There will be no mistaking the strength and beauty that stand tall, proud, and noble. The glass ceiling will come crumbling down. At last, sweet sisters, at last.
